FAIRVIEW TRAGEDY.

Carney Moore Fatally Wounds a Farm Hand, Louis Moore.

MOORE AND HIS WIFE QUARRELED.

When the Young Man Interfered and Was Shot by the Other Man. The Victim Will Die—Flushing Has a Triangular Sensation in Which Prominent People Are Involved. Two of Those Concerned Leave the Place.

The quiet little town of Fairview, twenty-five miles west of Wheeling, on the old national pike, in Guernsey county, Ohio, was the scene of a terrible tragedy yesterday that will end probably in the death of one man. Carney Moore is a prosperous farmer, who lives on his farm on the outskirts of the town. Moore's only failing has been a proneness occasionally to imbibe copiously at the shrine of Bacchus.

Yesterday morning he was in an intoxicated condition, and upon going to his home from the town quarreled with his wife. From words the quarrel developed into an argument of blows in which Mrs. Moore was badly worsted. At this juncture, a farm hand employed by Moore, named Louis Moore, interfered in an endeavor to protect the woman. Carney Moore resented this interference by transferring his attack to young Moore, but was not getting along so well as with a defenseless woman, when he suddenly drew a revolver and fired at young Moore. The ball took effect in the man's breast just above the heart, and he sank to the floor insensible.

As soon as possible officers and a physician were summoned. Carney Moore was arrested and jailed. The doctor who examined Louis Moore's wound announced that he would not recover. In the afternoon he had not died, but was in a very weak state, and death was expected hourly. The tragedy created great excitement in the community.

A TRIANGULAR AFFAIR

That is a Big Sensation out in Quiet Flushing Town.

Flushing is a small town, but it has a good-sized sensation. J. C. Bethel, Ed Bristol and Miss Adda Holloway are the participants. The first two named have left for parts unknown. Bethel, who is superintendent of the Flushing schools and editor and proprietor of the Advertiser, seems to have become infatuated with Miss Holloway while she was a pupil in the schools several years ago and was unable to recover.

It is said that he confesses his infatuation with the girl, but denies any criminal act. The discovery of the liaison is said to have been the production by the girl of letters that Bethel had written to her, in which he warned her not to divulge certain secrets between them. She was receiving attentions from Bristol, against which Bethel remonstrated, and went to the girl's parents to disclose the character of the young man, claiming he was married, when in a fit of anger the girl produced the letters and exposed Bethel, who left after the father and brother threatened to do him bodily harm. Bristol, who had been paying her board at the hotel, according to reports, also became frightened and he too skipped.

It is reported that Miss Holloway accuses Bethel of being intimate with her since she was fifteen years old, alleging that it began when she was a pupil in the Flushing schools, and he aided her in her studies after school and at her home in the evening.

Miss Holloway is nineteen years old, and is a fine-looking, bright girl. She graduated two years ago, and is the daughter of Col. Jacob Holloway, a prominent citizen. Bristol has been superintendent of the Flushing canning works since it started last summer, having come from Tiffin. Bethel is a married man, and has several children. He has been superintendent of the Flushing schools a long time, and has been an active worker in Sunday school, educational and Chautauquan work. He recently purchased the Flushing Advertiser, and was about to launch the Belmont Teacher. He was the Democratic candidate for clerk of court in Belmont county two years ago.

They Came From Canada.

A detective from Hamilton, Ontario, was in Martin's Ferry yesterday looking for a couple who have at the Sherman house several weeks. The pair heard that they had been located, and left on the 11 o'clock train on the Cleveland & Pittsburgh road for Steubenville yesterday morning. The detective followed on the 2:15 train, and it is reported that he found them there and caused their arrest. The detective said the man had a wife and one child at Hamilton, where he embezzled $1,800 from a business house with which he had been connected, and eloped with a pretty nineteen-year-old blond.
